

Old adage updated: 'A man's home is his hassle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an era of steadily rising housing costs, the adage "A man's home is his castle" may have to be updated to "A man's home is his hassle." How about a change from "Home is where the heart is" to "Home is where the money is?"

That message can be drawn from a report released Sunday on a 1975 housing survey by the Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

During the first half of the 1970s, it said, family incomes of both homeowners and renters failed to keep pace with the spiraling costs of housing.

This has halted what had been a steady pre-1975 growth in the proportion of Americans who own their own homes.

Leon Weiner, president of the National Housing Conference, said the report "raises a whole series of implications that are going to have to be looked at in some detail," including the possibility of further federal subsidies on interest rates for homebuyers.

The study showed that the percentage of American households owning their own homes in 1975 was 64.5 per cent, the same as the year before. The percentage had been rising steadily since 62.9 per cent in 1970.

The report also noted that the median value of owner-occupied, single-family homes rose nearly 73 per cent, from $17,100 in 1970, to $29,500 in October 1975.

During the same period, it said, median income for homeowners rose 40 per cent, from $9,700 to $13,600.

Renters fared no better, according to the study. It said median monthly gross rent including utilities increased from $108 to $156, or 44 per cent, while the median annual income of renters went up from $6,300 to $7,900, or 25 per cent.

And the proportion of U.S. renters who must devote 25 per cent or more of their income to housing increased to 42.3 per cent in 1975, compared to 39.8 per cent in 1974 and 36.5 per cent in 1970.

Overall, the median proportion of income devoted to housing costs among renters was 23 per cent in 1975.

For homebuyers with a mortgage the figure was 18 per cent, up from 17 per cent in 1974. Their costs included utilities, insurance, taxes and other expenses.

"The implications are we're doing something wrong," said Lawrence Simons, assistant HUD secretary for housing.

He noted that the government has already expanded its housing subsidy programs since 1975, but said, "We need a little more money. There's never enough money."

Despite the discouraging report, the Commerce Department said last week that Americans purchased a record number of new homes in February.

But it also reported the median price of a new home climbed $2,100, to $47,500. That was an 11.2 per cent increase over the same month a year ago.

Second Soviet trawler seized

Pope focuses on the young during Easter

By The Associated Press

Pope Paul VI wished the world "a happy Easter" in 14 languages, anarchists interrupted Mass in Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral, the Carters held a sunrise service on a Georgia back porch and millions watched the re-enactment of the Easter story on television.

"Life is beautiful if it is new," the Pope told an estimated 200,000 people thronging St. Peter's Square and overflowing into nearby streets. "We believe that the young people of today are particularly predisposed to understand and welcome this good wish, which is full of hope and energy."

In Jerusalem, the crush of pilgrims was unusually heavy because Easter came on the same day this year for the Eastern and Western Christian churches.

While Orthodox and Roman Catholics worshipped at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, many Protestants attended sunrise services at another traditional tomb site outside the walls of the Old City. Lutherans went to the Mount of Olives, where the New Testament says Christ ascended to heaven.

In Paris, two young French women ran up the aisle of Notre Dame shouting and trying to unfurl a banner supporting the West German Baader-Meinhof anarchist gang during services that were being televised throughout Western Europe. Police seized them on the steps of the altar, and the service continued.

President Carter and his family held a sunrise service on his son Jack's back porch in Calhoun, Ga. Amy read from the Bible, Mrs. Carter led a prayer and the family talked about the death and resurrection of Christ and what it meant to them, the President reported later. Then the Carters went to Sunday school and church at the First Baptist Church.

Bright sunlight brought thousands to promenade up and down New York's Fifth Avenue, closed to traffic for 19 blocks for the annual Easter Parade. Atlantic City's boardwalk also was crowded.

Crowds of at least 10,000 gathered at Stone Mountain, Ga., about 15 miles east of Atlanta, and across the country at the Hollywood Bowl for Easter sunrise services.

The California service was the 57th annual celebration at the Bowl. It was attended by Greek Orthodox Christians, Roman Catholics and Protestants this year because the two separate Easter observances coincided for the second time in 10 years.

Thousands attended similar services at several Los Angeles-area Forest Lawn cemeteries.

"It's perhaps appropriate that an Easter sunrise service be held in a cemetery because, in a sense, this is where Christianity began — with an empty tomb," said a cemetery spokesman.

CLASH AT PARADE

A young girl runs screaming with others Sunday as rival Irish Republican Army factions clashed outside the gates of Milltown Cemetery during parade commemorating the 1921 Easter rebellion against British rule. During the annual parade, ceremonial pistol volleys are fired over the graves of IRA dead at the cemetery.

Pacific State staff joins voting

Doctors seek strike sanction

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Doctors at Pacific State Hospital have joined with physicians at other state hospitals in a mail vote to seek strike sanction from their parent union in a protest over "deterioration of services" at state mental hospitals.

Heads of the California Federation of the Union of American Physicians and Dentists gave unanimous consent Saturday to ask approval from the UAP to strike against the state's 11 mental hospitals.

Dr. Edwin Griffith of Pacific State Hospital said this morning that probably 10 out of the 15 staff physicians returned their ballots to the union.

"We met informally with a union representative recently, but have no formal organization here at Pacific," said Dr. Griffith. "Having no officers, we have no officials spokesman, but I feel that there are better ways of resolving our problems than by striking."

Rabin agreed to pay the fine and drop his insistence on standing trial with his wife "in order to protect the dignity of the office of prime minister," the state radio reported.

$1,500 fine

The fine was considered a token sum, recognizing the fact that although Rabin was a cosignatory to the account, he did not actually use it.

Rabin agreed to pay the fine and drop his insistence on standing trial with his wife "in order to protect the dignity of the office of prime minister," the state radio reported.

Fishing violations prompt U.S. actions

By The Associated Press

A Soviet trawler was brought to dock at Boston today while a second Soviet ship was under Coast Guard control, the first two Soviet ships taken for violations of the United States' 200-mile fishing zone.

The gray and white trawler Taras Shevchenko docked at the Boston Coast Guard base shortly after 9 a.m. as its crew stood at the rails listening to rock music on transistor radios.

Coast Guard lawyers and representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office immediately boarded the ship.

The 275-foot ship, with a crew of 93, was seized late Saturday after the Coast Guard said it discovered the craft was carrying more than her allowed quota of river herring.

The Coast Guard announced Monday that a second Soviet ship, the Antanas Smechukas, had been ordered into Boston from 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket. The action took place on Sunday, the Coast Guard said, and the vessel was being escorted to Boston.

"Isn't that beautiful," said U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, who was at the dock to watch the Taras Shevchenko tie up.

"Look at those flags," he said in reference to the trawler sailing with the American flag flying from her foremast and the Soviet flag waving at her stern. This is routine: the flag of the host nation is flown on a forward mast.

The Coast Guard said the second vessel, a processing ship measuring 503 feet, was discovered carrying contraband fish. The Coast Guard did not name the species.

The Coast Guard said the cargo of the second vessel was seized, not the ship itself. But to seize the cargo, the vessel had to be taken into custody.

The crew of the Taras Shevchenko will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching it.

The Antanas Smechukas, a transport refrigerator ship, acts as a support ship to fishing ships, a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said.

He said it was the first time that the Coast Guard had taken control of a nonfishing Soviet ship. "We've never had one like this when we just seized the cargo. This is new ground for the Coast Guard," he said.

The Antanas Smechukas has a crew of 63 persons. It was built in 1974 and is home-ported in Klaipeda, Russia.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200-mile limit went into effect March 1.

"We've released several of them," President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet Embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them, that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over impounded ships passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston after the ship reaches the docks and is searched by customs officials.

Rabin to pay

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was fined $1,500 today for holding an illegal bank account in the United States that forced his resignation, the Finance Ministry said.

His wife Leah was ordered to stand trial for having actually operated the account of $21,000, a communique said.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union issued another blast of criticism today against President Carter's call for upgrading the broadcasting capabilities of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty. The Communist party newspaper Pravda labeled the U.S. stations "radio saboteurs" and said their broadcasts violate the Helsinki accords by interfering in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union and Eastern European nations, to which the two stations beam their broadcasts.

Carter urged Congress last month to approve funds for 16 additional 250-kilowatt transmitters for the two stations and the Voice of America. He said the new transmitters would permit the broadcasting "to increase its ability to penetrate jamming, to upgrade existing under-powered facilities and to provide reserve capacity for equipment failure in times of international crisis." In a dispatch from New York, Pravda said that since the Central Intelligence Agency stopped funding the two stations several years ago, their activities have been "covered up" by the Board for International Broadcasting established to run the stations.

"But the change of signboard did not affect in any way the contents of broadcasts by these subversive centers," the newspaper said.

The article attacked arguments that broadcasts by Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty help to encourage a "constructive dialogue" between East and West.

It also contended the two stations activities "have nothing in common with the further improvement of radio news service" as endorsed by the Helsinki agreements, signed in 1975 by 35 nations including the Soviet Union and the United States.

In L.A. 'invasion' Aliens, space monsters seen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Humanoids, space monsters and visitors from alien worlds leaped from television screens and the pages of futuristic novels.

Robots paraded. Swordsmen dueled with monsters. And regular patrons of the Marriott Hotel craned their necks.

Much of the world is content with watching spaceships or intergalactic wars on television, or curling up occasionally with an out-of-this-world paperback novel.

But not the 5,000 fans who chose to spend their Easter weekend at the three-day convention sponsored by the Science Fiction, Horror and Fantasy Association Inc.

They wanted in on the action.

"People here are not afraid to express themselves in unconventional ways," said one woman, at the event billed by sponsor Doug Wright as "a convention strictly for fans," not a gathering of writers or other commercial producers of the art form.

Many of the delegates, mostly from Southern California, stepped into the imaginary time warp even before they checked into the airport-area hotel. Vans painted to look like starship shuttlecraft speckled the parking lot.

Inside, costumed delegates paraded before noisy and appreciative audiences, and the scene often recalled a set of the now-defunct television show "Star Trek," despite Wright's disclaimer "that this is not a Star Trek convention."

Pointed ears — the trademark Star Trek's Mr. Spock — were available for a few dollars at a convention booth.

But at costume judging time, the crew of the starship Enterprise lost out to a character garbed as "The Phantom of the Paradise," a movie which melded science fiction horror with the world of rock music.

Masked aliens and monsters identified with a dozen television shows paraded through the hotel, and at least one conventioneer clanked as he walked.

"Looks like it came from Montgomery Ward," one woman observed of a frilly alien during Friday night's costume competition.

A computer technician from Moonbase Alpha, headquarters of the cast of TV's "Space 1999," walked into a wall-mounted chandelier and made an embarrassed exit. The chandelier was further damaged when a would-be Secret Service agent James West of the TV series "Wild, Wild West" got into a quarterstaff duel with a mad scientist.

And one alien literally laid an egg.

"Ooh, that's my baby," she cooed as a large round ovoid appeared on the floor from beneath her dress.

Peddlers of science fiction memorabilia did a brisk business.

In one corner of the auditorium, six girls consulted a Ouija board, and a Klingon — the bearded Satanic bad guys faced by Kirk and his crew — heatedly defended his liking for "The Starlost." That longdefunct TV show has faded from the general public's memory.

Through it all, came a sharp voice of one of the girls using the Ouija board.

"You can't tell the future," she reminded someone.

"You can't tell the future."

Costs of pumping cited

Water price hike forecast

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Negotiations have begun on what is expected to greatly increase the price of water to Los Angeles residents and San Joaquin Valley farmers in 1983, says the Sacramento Bee.

The Sunday story said it's a new price for the electrical power for the 18 pumping stations along the 400 miles of the State Water Project that dams up the Northern California streams and sends the water south. Much of the energy is needed to get the water over the Tehachapi Mountains.

Under a 1966 contract with the major utilities, the state pays about three mills per kilowatt hour for the electricity, of which in 1975 it used 3.8 billion kilowatt hours.

But the contract expires in 1983. Worse, electricity now costs about 20 mills to produce, and by year 2000 when the project is running at capacity, it will require 12 billion kilowatt hours a year for pumping.

The irrigation water now selling for $24 an acre-foot in the San Joaquin Valley will probably rise in price by one-third. And that increase will have to come out of the pockets of the consumers of the products grown in the valley.

An acre-foot is 325,900 gallons.

The Bee quoted William Warner, a former state director of water resources, as saying the state should build its own power plant because its demands are overwhelmingly high for the private utilities.

Problems unforeseen in 1966 include rampant inflation, soaring energy demands, the foreign oil embargo, environmental concerns, and the slowdown in development of nuclear power sources.

The story said that state water officials, in search of solutions, have decided to use power from the Oroville Dam to pump water, rather than selling it; become a partner in three nuclear plants now being discussed, and begin feasibility studies of 12 to 15 small hydroelectric plants in Northern California.

State briefs

Man crushed in bizarre mishap

VENTURA (AP) — A North Hollywood man died during a camping accident here when a 20-pound rock fell on his sleeping bag, authorities say.

They said companions found the body of Patrick Minogue, 27, Sunday morning when they tried to wake him up.

Sheriff's deputies said Minogue had camped at the base of a cliff in the Sespe Creek area of Los Padres Forest. The rock apparently fell from a height of about 50 feet, crushing his chest, the coroner's office said.

L.A. officer shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Los Angeles police officer who was shot while making a routine traffic citation was reported in fair condition at a Lynwood hospital.

Police at the 77th Division said patrolman Tedford Severns, 26, and his partner, Robert R. Yarnall, 24, stopped a speeding car in South-Central Los Angeles, when the driver, Roy Lee Bean, got out of his car and fired shots at Severns.

One of the bullets lodged in the officer's bullet-proof vest, but a second bullet entered his lower abdomen. Severns and Yarnall returned the fire, killing Bean.

5 killed in auto crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five persons, including three children, were killed in a high-speed, rear-end collision, sheriff's deputies said.

Temple City deputies said 21-year-old Juvena Juarez, of El Monte, was booked for investigation of felony manslaughter at the jail ward at County-USC Medical Center following the accident late Sunday.

Officials said Juarez was apparently driving alone in his car when he hit a car carrying six persons. Five of the people were killed, including two adults, two older children and a six-month-old baby. Another adult in the car was listed in critical condition.

Patty Hearst moves out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst has quietly left her expensive Nob Hill apartment with her parents and moved back to Hillsborough, it was reported today.

The San Francisco Chronicle said Miss Hearst, free on $1.25 million bail pending appeal of her bank robbery conviction, went back to Hillsborough with her mother and father more than a week ago.

Tot drowns in Easter tragedy

DOWNEY (AP) — An Easter visit ended in tragedy when an 18-month-old Downey girl drowned in a backyard pool during a visit to a relative's home. Downey police said.

Police identified the girl as Kelly Barfield, and said the girl's mother and a friend had gone to visit the relatives in Downey. When they went to leave, they noticed the baby was not around.

Officers said the baby was found floating face down in the water.

14 jailed in sniper raid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fourteen people have been arrested following a sniping incident in Lynwood, police said.

They said all those arrested, including several juveniles, belonged to a local youth gang. They said the youths apparently had been lying in wait for a rival gang.

Authorities said two officers were patrolling the area Sunday in an unmarked car when their windshield was shattered by the sniper's bullet. Neither officer was injured.

Inmate is stabbed to death

SAN QUENTIN (AP) — Officials reported a San Quentin inmate was stabbed and beaten to death over the weekend in an assault in a prison dining room.

Florencio Ramirez, 26, imprisoned at San Quentin since a Los Angeles County conviction on burglary and narcotics charges in 1976, was attacked in the afternoon in the south dining room.

The report said Ramirez was beaten over the head with a pipe and stabbed many times in the back.

Gulf Oil fine levied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gulf Oil Co. was fined $1,125 after pleading "no contest" to charges of delivering less gasoline than stated at a service station in Chatsworth.

The charges filed by City Atty. Burt Pines included eight counts of failing to maintain accepted tolerance rates in gas pumps and one count of failing to keep the pumps in proper condition while they were used to dispense gasoline.

Investigations revealed that the shortages created overcharges from $5.70 per 15 gallons to $16.06 per 15 gallons.

Five men rob brothers

Five men armed with a knife and a gun robbed, shot and stabbed two Ontario brothers Sunday night before stealing their car in the 700 block of E. California St. in Ontario, police reported.

Joseph Warren, 50, stabbed eight times in the incident, is listed in serious condition at Ontario Community Hospital. His brother, Lloyd Chester Warren, 45, was treated for a minor gunshot wound and released.

Police said the brothers entered the Southland Market Sunday night to purchase some liquor when they were approached by two male Latinos who asked if they would like to go to a party. The brothers consented and drove to the 700 block of E. California Street where a party was in progress. At the party, the two men were joined by three other men who suddenly pulled a gun and a knife on the brothers and ordered them to hand over their wallets. After the brothers consented, the five men attacked them. Police said the assailants then took the car keys to the victim's car and drove off. The vehicle was recovered by officers later that evening.

The brothers could only give police a sketchy description of their assailants. One of the men was described as being about 19 years of age, 5 feet 7, 150 pounds with dark shaggy long curly hair. Another was described as being about 19 with a short haircut.

Slain man an Ontarian

The body of a young man found shot to death in Pomona Saturday afternoon has been identified as that of a 21-year-old Ontario resident.

Police this morning said he was Oscar Salano Rivera, of 837 Greenwood St. The identification was made by relatives.

Rivera's body was discovered in the yard of a vacant, boarded-up house at 1095 E. Grand Ave. shortly before 3 p.m. The victim had been shot twice in the upper torso.

Detective Jerry Uribe said today that Rivera had come to Pomona to visit a woman. He said the motive for the slaying has not been determined, and there remained several persons to be interviewed by officers. No arrests had been made.

The body, lying facedown near the driveway, was found by a young woman arriving to visit a friend nearby.

The slaying was the city's eighth homicide this year.

Pomona beaten severely

A young Pomona man was beaten severely and shot in one arm late Saturday night by two men who wanted information about a runaway relative, police reported.

The victim, Milton M. Kendle, 23, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred later to County-USC Medical Center.

Investigators were told that two men attacked Kendle after arriving at his home at 1820 N. San Antonio Ave., demanding to know the whereabouts of a 14-year-old girl.

Kendle was dragged outside, beaten about his head and shot in the left arm. He was lying in the yard when officers arrived.

Burglary suspect held

Montclair police arrested a 19-year-old Ontario man after residents in the 10200 block of Bel Air Avenue in Montclair reported that a man had broken into an unoccupied home Saturday evening.

Chris Nunez of 1129 N. Virginia St., Ontario, was booked in the West End sheriff's jail for investigation of burglary as a result of the incident.

Police said that Nunez was found inside of the home on the officers arrival. While Nunez was being questioned, officers reported finding a number of household items stacked up against the rear door of the home that had been forced open.

Alta Loma robber sought

West End Sheriff's deputies this morning continued their search for a man armed with a small handgun who robbed the Spouse-Ritz store at 8776 Base Line Rd., Alta Loma of an undetermined amount of cash Saturday night.

Deputies said the gunman, described as a Latin, 20 years old, 5 feet 6, wearing an orange cap, blue jeans, and a green jacket entered the store about 9 p.m. and confronted several clerks. He ordered the clerks to hand over the cash from the register and fled the door.

He was last seen running towards Alta Loma High School.

Carter works on program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is putting finishing touches on his anti-inflation program after a weekend of fishing, tennis and Easter services in Calhoun, Ga., two whiskers bigger than his hometown of Plains, but just as relaxed.

Carter got back to work today with staff and Cabinet meetings and lunch with Vice President Walter Mondale.

Aides said Carter will reveal his anti-inflation program later this week, probably at a news conference. They said he will outline Latin American policy in a Washington speech to the Organization of American States, also later in the week.

Easter fire damages house

A fire which appeared to have smoldered in a child's bedroom marred the Easter celebration of the LeRoy Roybal family of Pomona.

The fire, at 2446 Geneva Place, was reported by a neighbor at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Fire and smoke were coming from the house when Pomona firemen arrived.

According to neighbors, the Roybal family left at about 11 a.m. to visit relatives.

The fire caused $8,000 damage to the structure and $3,000 to contents with heaviest destruction in the bedroom. There was smoke throughout the house.

Investigation of cause of the fire will continue today, a department spokesman said.

San Dimas girl hurt

A teen-age San Dimas girl was injured slightly early Sunday when the small car she was in jumped a curb and hit a street light standard in Pomona, police reported.

The girl, Cindy Bassett, 16, was a passenger in a car driven by Kenny Froessel, also 16, of Pomona, when it swerved into the light standard bordering San Antonio Avenue south of San Bernardino Avenue, police said. The impact broke the standard and it fell on the car.

The driver was not hurt in the 2 a.m. crash.

Glendora motorcyclist hurt in crash

A Glendora man was reported in critical condition after his motorcycle collided with a car Sunday on the Corona Expressway at Merrill Avenue near Chino.

Highway patrolmen said Donald Otterson's cycle collided with an auto driven by Merritt Brenner, 61, of La Puente. The cycle was going north on the expressway and the auto was traveling west on Merrill.

Otterson was taken to Chino General Hospital and later transferred to San Bernardino County Hospital. He suffered head and chest injuries. Brenner wasn't hurt in the accident.

Errors mar tax returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service figures it is short about 20 million income tax returns, with only five days left until the April 15 deadline.

And millions of taxpayers who got their returns in early made mistakes, in part because of changes in the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

This year, about 9.5 per cent of the nearly 31 million persons filing 1040 forms by April 1 made mistakes, the IRS says. The error rate on the 23.1 million 1040A forms was even higher, 13.6 per cent.

One way to reduce the possibility of error, IRS officials say, is to let them calculate your taxes.

That provides the added benefit of not having to send a check to the government until it sends you a bill, probably several weeks from now.

The IRS will figure taxes on short forms if they contain necessary information on earnings and taxes paid. Tax bureaucrats can take care of the two calculations which seem to cause the most difficulty, the standard deduction and the general tax credit.

If you want to file your own taxes, but don't think you're going to get all the calculations made in time, the government offers an extension — but it may cost more money.

If you send a Form 4868 to the IRS by Friday, you gain a reprieve of 60 days. But if you owe the government taxes, you have to include an estimate of how much, and submit a check with the estimate.

If you underestimate, you will have to pay interest at an annual rate of 7 per cent on the unpaid balance. If you are off by 10 per cent, the government imposes an additional penalty of 1/2 of 1 per cent a month.

And if you expect money back, don't expect it too soon. The wait is about six weeks, the IRS says.

There is one other alternative.

That's to line up several sharp pencils on your desk, open the tax booklet the government mailed to you and figure your taxes — on time — by yourself, hopefully avoiding the mistakes that millions make each year.

Author defends basis for 'Roots'

LONDON (AP) — Author Alex Haley says a British reporter's challenge to the factual basis of his book "Roots" was an "unwarranted, unfair and unjust" smear attack.

"I stand by and defend my work," Haley said Sunday as he arrived from New York for a four-day stay en route to Africa. "I took over nine years to write my book, but I think that this reporter took less than nine days."

A copyrighted article by Mark Ottaway in the Sunday Times claimed "Roots" has "little basis in provable fact."

Ottaway was particularly critical of Haley's climactic chapter tracing his ancestry to an 18th century West African named Kunta Kinte who was seized by slavers while chopping wood outside the village of Juffure, in what is now Gambia.

Ottaway after an investigation in Gambia wrote that Haley's information came from an oral historian who was notoriously unreliable. He said Juffure was "a white trading post surrounded by white colonialization," and "insofar as the inhabitants of Juffure were involved in slave trading, it was not as victims but as collaborators with the whites."

Haley said of the man who told him the story of Kunta Kinte: "I never had the slightest cause to consider him unreliable. What am I to do but accept what he told me? There are no written records in African villages. The only thing that works in African villages is oral history."

He agreed with Ottaway that the villagers of Juffure cooperated in the slave trade but said this did not disprove the story that Kunta Kinte was captured by slavers.

"Slave ship captains did not care about pacts or agreements," he said. "They had holds to be filled with blacks and anybody who was accessible to kidnap was kidnaped and taken away."

Haley conceded previously that "there are dozens of errors in the book." But he said none was made knowingly and that his intention was to write a symbolic history of black Americans.

"I will ... stand behind the fact that I did do nine years of serious sincere research and to the best of my ability drew together what I inferred to be the most accurate information I could obtain," he declared.

The British Broadcasting Corp. showed the first three parts of the film adaptation of "Roots" on Friday, Saturday and Sunday and will show the remaining three episodes on the next three Sundays.

Pomona wounded; young suspect held

A Pomona man was wounded in the back late Saturday night while he sat in his car parked near Cherrieville Park in Pomona, police reported.

The victim, Evans O. Reese, 41, drove to the police station afterward and led officers to the residence of a 17-year-old youth he identified as a suspect in the shooting. The youth, a Park Avenue High School student, was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Reese next was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was treated for the wound.

The victim told police he was parked near the park when he heard the sound of breaking glass. He said he decided to leave and then heard shots. One bullet penetrated a window of the car and hit him in the back. He said he saw the suspect enter a house on W. Monterey Avenue immediately after the shooting.

Arresting officers said they found no weapon inside the house, but did find an ammunition clip for a rifle and three rounds of .22-caliber ammunition.

San Diego, Mexico fighting to save old border railroad

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) After 137 years, the runty railroad along the U.S.-Baja California border may be losing its struggle to survive changing economic times and the caprices of nature.

The U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission will decide soon if the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway, a curious little line, will be abandoned to the harsh elements that have tried to claim it through the decades.

People on both sides of the border are awaiting word on a request by the Southern Pacific Transportation Co. to discontinue service on the historic line, which was damaged badly when Hurricane Kathleen tore through the Mexican peninsula last October.

Mexican authorities are reluctant to see their portion of the tracks abandoned.

"Most of the railroad is in the territory of the U.S.

They say it is too high a price to repair the damage. We plan to repair that part which is on the Mexican side," Gov. Milton Castellanos Everard of the state of Baja California said in a recent interview.

In California, public officials in San Diego, and Imperial counties also say they are determined to see the line survive in some fashion.

There's a strong romantic attraction for the railroad, a wood and iron snake of burden that has survived fire, revolution and a route that takes it over some of the most rugged terrain imaginable.

From San Diego, the railroad crosses south to Tijuana, then swings east through the hills of northern Baja to the brewery city of Tecate before winding back into the United States through the stark and savage Carrizo Gorge. At one point, the tracks run 19 feet below sea level before soaring to 3,700 feet above, giving the San Diego & Arizona Eastern some of the highest wooden trestles in the world.

Kathleen destroyed or damaged eight of the 14 trestles, left several of the line's 23 tunnels unsafe and washed tons of earth from beneath the tracks, leaving rails dangling over 1,000-foot-high cliffs at some points.

Southern Pacific estimates it would cost $1.3 million to repair damage on the line, which had more than $1 million in 1975 operating losses. But its bid to abandon service has met with stiff opposition.

"We are going to appeal the application for abandonment before the ICC and any other forum necessary," says Don L. Nay, director of the San Diego Port District, which has authorized a formal lawsuit against SP. Also fighting for the little line are San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson and Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., senior member on the House Commerce Committee, who has promised to make his power felt with the ICC.

The Mexican government fears that discontinuing service on the SD&AE could create an energy crisis for the Baja peninsula, since such materials as propane and butane for homes and industry move from the switchpoint at Mexicali to stopoffs in Baja.

"We fear grave economic losses," said Carlos Malo Kahuam, director of the Sonora Baja California Railroad, which maintains the tracks on the Mexican side of the border. "They always forget about this little line. It may lose money for Southern Pacific, but it produces money for us."

In an effort to save the SD&AE, Luis Gomez Zepeda, director general of the Mexican National Railway System, plans to meet with Benjamin F. Giagnini, chairman and president of Southern Pacific Co.

Several other suggestions are being voiced on how to save the line if the ICC grants SP permission to abandon at.

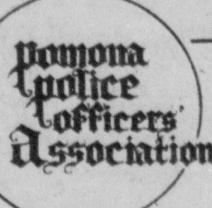

William Druhan, staff director of the House Commerce and Transportation

Subcommittee, wants local officials to petition for inclusion of the line in the soon-to-be compiled "California Plan of Transportation Needs." The line then would be eligible for federal reconstruction help.

Sen. James Mills, D-San Diego, wants to see the city use part of the $30 million it is to receive in federal mass transit funds over the next five years to repair the line to provide both rapid transit and freight needs.

Deukmejian will miss death penalty debate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's death penalty debate moves to the Assembly today, but one of the stars of the show will be missing.

Aides to Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, author of a death penalty bill that the Senate passed before the Easter recess, say he won't be ready to take it up today in the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee.

One reason, they say, is that Deukmejian wants to make amendments. The amendments weren't specified.

Another reason may be that the committee, at last count, was an uncertain 5-4 against the bill, though its vote isn't expected to keep a capital punishment bill off the Assembly floor.

A survey of the Assembly indicates a close vote on the two-thirds majority needed to override Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s promised veto.

Former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark will be testifying against the death penalty in the committee's third hearing on the subject. A vote is possible but not certain.

Before the panel are a variety of proposals to resume use of California's gas chamber, idle since 1967, or alternately to impose a life sentence without possibility of parole.

One of the bills, by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, is virtually identical to Deukmejian's, which would impose the death

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — I remember this sleepy Mekong River city when it was as lusty as a new gold-field town. There was a genuinely exotic mix of opium-smoking, secret war and palace intrigue.

But two years after Communist victories in Indochina, a bamboo curtain is closing over Laos, and like the relics of boom towns littering the American West, there are now only ghostly reminders of a once-vibrant past.

The bordellos and dance halls of Vientiane were legendary throughout the Orient. But the White Rose, where a western military attache once wed the head girl and returned to live in happy marriage, is now boarded up.

The once busy life of the dusty streets where only one traffic light was ever installed — and it didn't work — and where East met West in Mercedes-Benz limousines and bullock carts, has slowed to a walk. No gasoline.

One could order steak au poivre and sticky rice at the pseudo French restaurants, and wash it down with champagne or rice wine. The La Pagoda near the sports stadium is one of the few that remain open, but it serves grainy brown bread instead of pommes frites and has eggs but no bacon.

King Savang Vatthana has been sent north to the mountains to grow vegetables and be re-educated. His Vientiane palace, nestled amongst the pagoda spires, is now the home of his Communist cousin, President Souphanouvong who, when I first lived in Laos, escaped from political prison by converting all his guards to his cause.

When the vagaries of the cold war used to bring Western newsmen stampeding to Laos, cabled news dispatches became the second biggest foreign earner after timber. This trip I couldn't even send a message from the post office because the operators indicated they couldn't transmit the English.

Each night, from 500 to 100 residents of Vientiane are known to skid down the steep sandy banks of the Mekong River, and paddle across the thin stream of placidly running water to seek asylum in the refugee camps of Thailand, leaving behind homes, businesses and relatives in the reeducation camps.

During talks with the presidential commission, Lao officials charged that the CIA was back in Laos and helping Meo guerrillas in the mountains. They suggested that the former Meo leader, General Vang Pao, had returned to Laos and was running the insurgency.

DECADE: TO GET REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' WE SPENT TEN YEARS REINVENTING THE CIGARETTE.

In the past everyone knew what a cigarette was supposed to do: taste good. However, tobacco taste has traditionally come from what is known as tobacco 'tar.'

In order for us to reduce this 'tar' while maintaining taste we had to virtually reinvent the cigarette. And that can't be done overnight. In fact it took us ten years to develop a "Total System" capable of delivering truly satisfying taste in a low 'tar' cigarette.

What we mean by "Total System"

A high-filtration low 'tar' cigarette is a complex system of interacting parts.

The tobacco. The filter. And even the paper.

Our objective was to focus on all these parts and arrange them in perfect balance with each other. Only by concentrating on the parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing" plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

We've developed a system called "Flavor Packing" that allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

This is in addition to our special taste blend of fifteen fine tobaccos, including exotic Turkish, full bodied Burley, and Bright, a tobacco known for its smoothness.

The Filter. Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

The Decade filter is a combination of modern laser technology, plus our own exclusive research design. Simply, we've created a channel within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes. Which means you get taste from first puff to last.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

For Decade we use only high porosity cigarette paper. Ordinary paper inhibits the burn rate, which can diminish the taste and create the need to pull harder when you drag.

With Decade's high porosity paper however, you get an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.
A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack of Decade for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And after one taste we think you'll agree that our last 10 years were well worth the effort.

County supervisors to study air management funding

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors will decide Tuesday whether to honor a court order instructing the county to subsidize the South Coast Air Quality Management District for the rest of the fiscal year.

The county's portion of the subsidy would come to $2,368,142, including $7,000 in interest payments for money the state already has laid out.

The ruling, declaring unconstitutional a state law that makes participating counties liable for the support of the smog control district, was handed down last week by Judge Charles S. Vogel of Claremont, who is now presiding over a Superior Court in Los Angeles.

The supervisors had been withholding payments for support of the SCAQMD since last February, contending that the agency was set up by the state, and therefore should be subsidized by the state.

Rather than to allow the district to go bankrupt without that support, the state passed an emergency bill putting up the money as a loan and charging interest to the county. The issue then went to court resulting in Judge Vogel's findings last week.

Only Board Chairman Ed Edelman, a member of the air quality district, gave full support to the judge's decision Tuesday.

Supervisor Baxter Ward said he would be willing to go along if the interest did not have to be paid.

But Supervisor James Hayes was opposed, and called on his colleagues not to "pass cavalierly an issue of such major importance." He said he wanted a week to study the ruling and its impact.

"Just because one Superior Court judge made a ruling doesn't mean we have to jump through a hoop," he declared. "I'd like to consult with county counsel on this."

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said he felt the local government should pay local costs.

"But once the state takes over the operation of a local agency that operation should be financed by the state," he added.

The air management district is the revised version of the Southern California Air Pollution Control District. Its membership is composed of city and county officials from Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

The Los Angeles supervisors are displeased because they feel they don't have adequate representation on the board commensurate with the money they are expected to put up to keep the agency running.

Pomona tot will undergo surgery

A 2½-year-old Pomona tot will undergo open heart surgery Thursday at Loma Linda University Medical Center to correct a birth defect.

David Richmond Jr. — called Cricket by his family — has Type A negative blood which is rather rare, according to his grandmother, Mrs. Chester Frederick of Pomona.

Cricket needs 14 donors, some of which should have his blood type, to help replace his open heart surgery blood by donating on Thursday at the Ontario YMCA.

Mrs. Frederick said the special donor center will be open from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and appointments are not required.

However, she added, donors should specify that the blood is for David at Loma Linda hospital.

David, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Richmond, 674 E. Lincoln Ave., was born with a congenital heart murmur which has been monitored by the family doctor.

During a recent examination, the doctor discovered a change in his condition and recommended that the boy be examined further at the Loma Linda facility.

A heart catheterization was done last week and surgery was set for this week.

Volunteer honors set in Claremont

Up to 150 volunteers will be honored Wednesday at 6 p.m. when Claremont Meals on Wheels holds its fifth annual dinner meeting at the Claremont Presbyterian Church.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit, all-volunteer organization and community service delivering hot mid-day meals Monday through Friday to people unable to cook for themselves.

Retiring President Walter Phares will chair the meeting when the following slate of candidates will be offered to the membership for a vote: Clark Hungerford, president; Mrs. Mary Caenepeel, vice-president; Mrs. Jane Winant, secretary; and Bennett Robertson, treasurer.

Retiring board members include Mrs. Ebba Clarke, Earl Kieselhorst, Vladimir Rojanski, and Franklin (Bud) Uhl.

New board members for confirmation by the membership include Mrs. Jane Winant, Mrs. Caenepeel, Mrs. Marge Tower, Miss Marjorie Crouch, and Norman Bottom.

Mrs. Ebba Clarke and Mrs. Marge Tower are in charge of the potluck dinner.

Mrs. Fran Grose is volunteer coordinator of the group while Mrs. Elise Batcheller will continue as chairman of the day captains.

Members of community organizations have been invited to attend the meeting.

According to Phares, volunteers are the key to the success of Meals on Wheels and are often the client's only contact with the outside world.

Volunteer drivers work in teams of two, and give about two hours twice a month.

Senior appointments slated for committee

Appointments will soon be made to the Chino Senior Citizen Center Committee, a group to promote services and programs for Chino area senior citizens.

Any person over the age of 50 interested in serving on the committee is urged to attend an organizational meeting scheduled Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

SHE LIKES OUTDOORS

Working outdoors is enjoyable labor for Mary (Mimi) Ringl, the only woman groundsman for the Claremont Community Services Department. Since July, she has tried weeding, tree trimming, toting rubbish on home pickup, and now looks forward to four months on the lawn mowing crew. She said she would like to become a permanent employee.

'I was the only woman' Grounds(woman) getting involved

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

More women are getting involved in jobs once considered the domain of men. One such woman is 5 foot 2 Mary (Mimi) Ringl of La Verne, a groundsman for the Claremont Community Services Department.

"I got tired of carrying trays of food but enjoy working outdoors, so I applied last July for a job under the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) program with the City of Claremont," explained Mrs. Ringl. "I expected a few other girls to apply, but I was the only woman among 70 to 80 applicants, and was surprised to land the job."

She recalled the physical agility exam she took, but discovered she could do pushups like anyone else.

A single parent, Mrs. Ringl drops her four and six year old youngsters off at a babysitter's home on her way to work at 6:45 a.m.

Before this week, she reported for work at 6 a.m., but with the reorganization of the various city departments came changes in starting times.

"I like starting early because I get off early and that is nice in the summer," she said. She contrasted her present working hours with those night hours she had as a waitress.

Ready to try any job, Mrs. Ringl spent a week with the sanitation crew and felt it has its advantages.

"You can work as fast as you want," she said.

At another time, she worked with the tree crew and enjoyed using a chain saw.

Her latest assignment under Claremont's cross-training program the city is instituting to give its employees more skills is the park mowing crew which uses hand mowers, edgers, and up to seven-gang (seven sets of cutting blades) mowers.

"I think the job is neat, really neat, but because I'm a CETA employee, my job is not permanent, so I've applied for a permanent position with the city," she explained.

Mrs. Ringl said the city encourages its employees to gain further education to help them in their jobs.

She presently is attending a two-hour session Wednesday afternoons in turf maintenance at Palomares Park. It's a Mt. San Antonio College extension course.

"The city encourages all its employees to further their education so they can be better employees," she commented.

Noting that she doesn't like secretarial jobs, Mrs. Ringl recalled her first task as groundsman last July.

"We were getting ready for the Fourth of July celebration," she explained. "At Memorial Park they didn't want to seed the area so I helped to plant sod, and let me tell you. That was a job." Mrs. Ringl is not the first woman to work in the outdoors department, but she's setting a record for longevity.

Volunteers record increases

Bighorn sheep 'prospering' in San Gabriel Mountains

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

There appears to be a slight increase in the number of bighorn sheep in the San Gabriel Mountains north of the valley.

A one-day count by 160 volunteers recorded 374 bighorns in the area north of Lytle Creek this month.

Jim DeForge, a graduate student at Cal Poly Pomona, and Glenn R. Stewart, professor of biological sciences at the university, feel they probably tallied about 70 to 80 percent of the total population of the magnificent sheep in the local range.

"While this is an increase in the number of bighorn counted over last spring's check, the increase may be due to better counting methods," DeForge is quick to say. The volunteers were divided into 10 areas and the count was coordinated by air reconnaissance.

"It's too early in our research to tell very much about the population of bighorn sheep in this range since we have very little background data," DeForge explained.

It is known that thousands of the sheep ranged in the mountains and deserts in the early 1900s but the number and locations have declined markedly.

DeForge, who began his actual research in the field two years ago, said "We need to know more about the bighorn sheep, their susceptibility to diseases, foraging and mating habits, etc., if we are to protect them from extinction through good management."

The spring count was done with the cooperation, and some financial assistance of the U.S. Forest Service and the California Department of Fish and Game.

The 160 volunteers came from 20 different agencies, including five colleges, veterinarians, the Los Angeles County Zoo, forest service and fish and game personnel, and a number of conservation groups, including the Society for the Conservation of the Bighorn Sheep.

At this time, the sheep are in their winter grazing area, from about 3,000 to 6,000 feet elevation. In the summer, the animals will migrate even higher.

DeForge said the spotters did not see any lambs yet, but added "we saw a number of pregnant ewes, so can anticipate lambing in April and early May."

The particular species in the San Gabriel Range is a subspecies, nelsoni, of the Desert Bighorn sheep. All species of bighorn sheep are protected by law. While many species are on the endangered list, the nelsoni is not.

There is a heavy fine and the possibility of imprisonment for killing any of the sheep. This includes other populations in the San Gorgonio, San Jacinto and Santa Rosa mountains and other West Coast ranges.

DeForge first became seriously interested in research on the bighorns about 1971. A native of Michigan, he was interested in the sheep before coming to Cal Poly. In fact, it was his interest in the sheep which led DeForge to the university and to Stewart.

"I began writing proposals several years ago but it took two years to obtain approval from the forest service and the Department of Fish and Game to start the research which will take a number of years to complete," said DeForge.

The first attempt at tracking the sheep with a transistor radio mounted on a collar of a ewe ended tragically last fall.

DeForge had placed a collar on the ewe, which he called Petunia (easier to remember than a number, he felt) and was tracking her through the electrical beeps put out by the device.

He went into the area to locate Petunia and the herd she led, but could find no trace of the sheep. Later, another bighorn conservationist discovered the carcass. The lamb she had been nursing and the other sheep in her group were gone.

"While we have no positive proof, because of the condition of the body, we feel strongly that Petunia was shot by a poacher."

Just within the last few weeks, DeForge and his helpers have put radio collars on two rams and two ewes in the Lytle Creek area.

The rams are two and nine years old and the ewes are four and five. The oldest bighorn spotted in the

MOUNTAINEERS

About 375 of the nelsoni subspecies of the Desert Bighorn sheep were counted in the San Gabriel Mountains this spring as part of a research on the sheep being conducted by Jim DeForge, a graduate student at Cal Poly Pomona. Some 160 volunteers from 20 organizations participated in the recent one-day counting process.

local area is nine, according to DeForge.

The age of a bighorn sheep can accurately be determined by counting the ridges on the giant, curled horns.

"We will use the collared sheep as part of our in-depth study. Helicopters are used to dart the animals and sedate them briefly. At the same time that the collars and transistors (which weigh less than a pound) are put on the animal, we draw blood and carefully inspect and measure the animal."

DeForge spends about five days a week tracking the sheep. Already, one of the rams has left the range. The graduate student assumes that the sheep has headed up to its summer range area.

"We do know some of the habits of the sheep," DeForge reported. "They graze on 60 degree slopes, like about a 20 per cent ground cover, feed on mountain mahogany and grasses and need to be in open areas because they can be stressed easily by humans or other restrictions."

He said fire suppression programs have closed some of the range areas to the sheep.

Stewart and DeForge understand the concern of naturalists and their resistance to allowing the study of the sheep.

The two men are also concerned that the public will endanger the shy animals in their eagerness to see them at close range.

Fortunately, the bighorn sheep prefer a terrain which is rugged and remote. However, the preliminary data already gathered by the team members suggest a problem between human impact and sheep movement.

"I have mixed feelings about the development of a wilderness area in these mountains," Stewart said. "We can't justify the development of the proposed wilderness area as protection for the bighorn."

"Quite the contrary, people tend to gravitate to these wilderness areas to camp and hike, thus driving the sheep away."

There is currently a two-year study on the creation of a Sheep Mountain Wilderness in the Angeles and San Bernardino national forests, signed by President Gerald Ford on Oct. 19, 1976.

Wilderness status for the 52,000-acre study area means that motor vehicles or commercial development would be forbidden.

The creation of the wilderness area is being opposed by ski resort operators who feel their operations will be heavily curtailed.

DeForge said that the recent research with the sheep cost over $2,000 for supplies and air transportation. He added that the lack of funds may curtail the program.

Electoral college

One of the perennial arguments against the Electoral College system is the possibility that a presidential candidate could lose the nationwide popular vote and still win the election with a majority of state electoral votes.

It is more than a possibility; it has happened twice in the nation's history, although not in this century.

This is because of the winner-take-all aspects of the system. A candidate need win by a margin of but a single popular vote in any given state to take all of that state's electoral votes.

Another possibility is that no candidate would win a majority of electoral votes and the election would be thrown into the House of Representatives, where all kinds of wheeling and dealing would take place. This has also happened twice, in 1800 and 1824.

But if the Electoral College system gives disproportionate weight to the small states, doing away with it in favor of the direct popular election of presidents, as has been proposed by the Carter administration, could just as undesirably swing too much influence to the large states. Or so argue a number of opponents of the proposal.

Sen. Jim Allen, D-Ala., for instance, poses the hypothetical case in which "ultraliberals" in the North could put up a presidential candidate from New York with its 6.5 million popular votes and a vice presidential candidate from neighboring Pennsylvania with its five million votes.

Such a ticket could gain, say, a 2.5-million vote majority in those two states alone. Another ticket could win the other 48 states with a 50,000-vote margin in each, and still lose the election.

This, says Allen, would give the political philosophy of large voting states too much of an advantage.

The central concern, however, should not be whether the direct popular election of presidents would enable Eastern liberals to take over the country (some would say they have already) or enable any other political philosophy to do so. What is involved is the basic political compromise on which this nation was founded.

We are a single people. But we are also a collection of 50 separate and widely different states, joined together in a hoped-for more perfect union in which certain powers have been delegated to a central government for the common welfare, while all other powers are reserved by the people in their respective states.

It is the extent to which the direct popular election of presidents might serve to erode this federal-state arrangement that deserves thoughtful consideration.

On the one hand, there is the danger that the Electoral College system might sometimes seriously thwart the will of the majority of Americans. On the other is the danger that its abolition might also abolish the important factor of regional political balance needed in a country as large and diverse as ours.

Some say, indeed, that it would doom the Republican party by destroying its traditional bases of strength in the smaller states, and at the same time encourage a multitude of splinter parties.

Arguments on either side, and there are many more of them, can easily be overstated. Fortunately, even if Congress should pass a constitutional amendment providing for the direct election of president and vice president, it would still require ratification by 38 states, a years-long process that would allow plenty of time for thoughtful debate.

Terrorism again

The collision of two 747 jumbo jets in the Canary Islands was not only history's worst aviation disaster. It also accounted for the greatest toll of life that can be attributed to the activities of political terrorists.

Originally scheduled to land at Las Palmas airport on the island of Grand Canary, the Dutch KLM and Pan American jetliners had been diverted to the neighboring island of Tenerife, where they met fatally on the runway during takeoff preparations. They were diverted because a time bomb, admittedly planted by a group agitating for the independence of the Canaries from Spain, had exploded shortly before at Las Palmas, injuring eight persons.

The terrorists, of course, cannot be accused of desiring the deaths of the Dutch and American victims. They claim that the planes could have landed at Las Palmas, but the authorities did not want anyone to see the bomb damage.

Be that as it may, they planted the bomb, which only by sheer luck did not kill anyone — directly. By the worst possible luck, compounded by weather and human error, it indirectly caused nearly 600 people to lose their lives.

Is there no place in the world free of these fools and idiots, whose ideological stock in trade is terror, destruction and death?

Bus riders inconvenienced

Dear Editor:

We wish to voice our objection to the recent route change for the 764, the Pomona Park and Ride.

The bus was relocated from the Pomona heliport to the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. This change has caused many of us RTD bus riders a great inconvenience. For example, if we miss the 764 or must leave Los Angeles early for any reason such as a family emergency or personal sickness it is impossible to get to our cars at the fairgrounds. The Park and Ride is the only bus going to the fairgrounds.

We feel a far better location for the Pomona Park and Ride would be the parking lot of the Indian Hill Village at Holt and East End. This shopping center is also accessed by the 480, which if it became necessary to return home either before 3:50 p.m. or after 5:30 p.m. the 480 could be used.

(Editor's note: This letter carried the signatures of 56 persons.)

Feds gear for more terrorism

WASHINGTON — In the aftermath of the Hanafi Muslim siege in Washington last month, federal officials are bracing for the possibility of more hostage-taking by dozens of violence-prone groups.

Law enforcement experts from the State, Treasury, Justice and Defense Dept. have been meeting recently to devise methods to thwart future takeovers. Three special anti-terrorist units, the CIA's "Critical Collection Problems Committee," Justice's "Interdepartmental Committee on Internal Security," and the "Cabinet Committee to Combat Terrorism," are also trying to come up with solutions.

As in the Hanafi case, the intelligence experts have no idea where or when the terrorists will strike next. Some officials at the meetings have grumped that without illegal mail covers, wiretaps and break-ins, adequate data cannot be gathered. Such tools have largely been abandoned since Watergate and recent revelations of CIA-FBI abuses.

To replace these unconstitutional methods, some of the federal agencies are turning to sophisticated anti-terrorist technology, but the results have been limited. The Customs Service, for instance, has set up a Terrorist Data Base containing 2,000 names and 5,000 passport numbers. Some suspects have as many as seven aliases.

The system helped identify an alleged Japanese terrorist in Honolulu last month, shortly before Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda arrived in the United States.

The suspect was thoroughly searched, briefly detained, then put under surveillance. The computer also enabled agents to lock up a man who had threatened to kill Queen Elizabeth on her American visit last year.

Classified intelligence bulletins cite militant Puerto Rican nationalists and anti-Castro Cubans as the most likely groups to commit violence in the immediate future.

The Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional of Puerto Rico (FALN) reportedly was behind the bombing last month of a New York building that housed an FBI field office. The same group blew up New York's historic Fraunces Tavern in 1975, killing four people and injuring 53. Meanwhile, the revolutionary Puerto Rican Socialist Party may soon be taken over by Florencio Merced Rosa, a young hothead who, say intelligence sources, had ties with an FALN "bomb factory" discovered last November in Chicago.

Some anti-Castro Cubans, headquartered in Miami, already are suspected of killing Chilean exile Orlando Letelier and many others. One anti-Castro group, the Frente de Liberacion Nacional de Cuba, according to an intelligence report, "is known to possess a large amount of C-4 explosives, which it may use against pro-Castro and Soviet targets . . . if relations with Cuba appear to be improving."

The infamous Weather Underground is still considered a threat, as are the tiny Japanese Red Army, the violent wing of the Irish Republican Army, the leftist New World Liberation Front, and the Red Guerrilla Family.

More exotic terrorist groups are also named in the intelligence bulletins.

The Rastafarians, a Jamaican-based religious sect that deifies the late Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, now has 3,000 members in the New York city area. While many are law-abiding, some preach "the ways of the white man are evil," says a confidential report, and "terrorism has been increasingly associated with this group." The report urges "extreme caution" in approaching members of the group, who are also called "Dreads," "Rude Boys" and "Beardsmen."

Federal agents are also worried over possible terrorism by elements of the "Front de Liberation du Quebec," which seeks independence from Canada. "Members . . . are believed to have connections with a number of European and Mideast terrorist groups," says a classified bulletin.

HEARST AND HUGHES: Howard R. Hughes and his aides turned down a request to help finance the ransom of Patty Hearst, according to the late billionaire's private papers, because they feared Hughes might be kidnapped in retaliation by the gun-crazy Symbionese Liberation Army.

"This organization is a very dangerous, radical group," warns a staff memo, "and we are afraid that they might retaliate by trying to kidnap one of our executives, or even HRH."

The Hearst family had hoped Hughes would put up some of the $4 million in food-for-the-poor.

The economy's greening up

'Tis spring, tra la, and everything's coming up green. That's green as in money.

Pay no attention to White House moans that what business needs is a $32 billion shot in the arm, plus a $50 tax rebate. What you might call a presidential dose of fiscal sulphur and molasses to help it get over the winter blahs.

Business doesn't need it. It's getting well by itself. All Doc Carter has to do is check his thermometer.

Things are so good, in fact, even the bankers and manufacturers are agreeing with the economists that we're heading for boom times. More important, Arthur Burns cranked out a rare smile and admitted prosperity has a pretty good chance.

He was talking about the amount of ready cash that's floating around and the "truly striking" low interest rates. But all the other signs are there, too.

Real economic growth rates for the first three months of 1977 were just under 4 per cent, and the experts say that's only the beginning. They're looking for a "hot" second-quarter rebound of anywhere from 8 to 10 per cent. One conservative analyst, not given to bursts of enthusiasm, lost his head and predicted a boomer.

So far, it's heading that way.

Factory orders last month, for instance, were up 1.6 per cent . . . shipments, 2.7 per cent . . . inventories, 0.6 per cent . . . and orders for machine tools a whopping 55.9 per cent.

Building starts for new homes, without which no recovery is ever possible, swirled up 34 per cent to $3.4 billion. Federal spending on highways, sewer and water projects went up 14 per cent to $7.52 billion.

(Construction of factories and industrial plants dropped a disappointing 12 per cent, but new stores, shopping centers and other retail buildings were up.)

Sales of used homes reached a record 3 million in 1976, compared to the previous high of 2.5 million in 1975. And there's still plenty of mortgage money around, plus interest rates that are lower than they've been in years.

Automobiles are selling 10 per cent ahead of this time last year, and Detroit is looking for a banner year of 11 million sales, second only to 1973.

Employment is up by 1.75 million jobs since November . . . the unemployment rate is down to 7.3 per cent . . . wage earners are putting in longer weeks . . . help-wanted ads are up 13 points from a year ago . . . and the number of workers on unemployment compensation is the lowest it has been in 2 and one-half years.

It's also going to be a whoopdedo year for college grads. Jobs available for those with bachelors degrees are up 49 per cent . . . with masters, up 74 per cent (80 per cent for women) . . . and for doctors, up 73 per cent. As usual, engineers, accountants and auditors are most in demand.

Wages and salaries were up 7.2 per cent for 1976. (Although not everybody tripled his income the way the chairman of the board of Chrysler did — to $691,733.)

There's room for jubilation at the top, too. Corporate profits for the last three months of 1976 were up 21 per cent from 1975. And nobody expects that to change direction any time soon.

That's because consumers are in a buying mood. With all those new houses to furnish, they're loading up on sofas, beds, refrigerators, TV sets, washers, dryers, microwave ovens — the works. Plus the usual spring surge in new clothes. Overall increase so far: 8 to 10 per cent.

The one worm in the garden of recovery is inflation, which almost everybody agrees will hang in there at about 6 per cent for the rest of the year.

That's without the president's economic stimulus package. If that goes through, it likely will go higher.

If he must tinker with the economy, conservatives wish he'd do it with permanent tax cuts . . . which will let consumers plan on more loose cash to spend . . . which will encourage businessmen to invest in new factories and machinery . . . which will create more jobs . . . which will help bring down unemployment.

It could be that Mr. Carter secretly agrees with them. Maybe that's why he threatened to kill Congress' pet water boondoggles, hoping they'll get him off the hook by killing his $50 rebate out of spite.

He can't come right out and do it himself. Not after the campaign promises about moving dramatically to create more jobs. But he might not feel too bad if Congress does it for him.

No matter what he says for publication.

New costs to local govt.

By EARL G. WATERS

Legislative committee hearings have been scheduled this week on a measure which could cost property owners as much as $65 million annually in new taxes plus some additional millions in added state taxes, according to the County Supervisors Association.

The bill, AB 644, authored by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, would extend, for the first time, unemployment insurance coverage to state and local government workers. The proposal, McAlister said, is necessary to comply with a new federal law. He has introduced it at the request of Gov. Jerry Brown.

Although McAlister said there is no practical way for any state to avoid the federally mandated legislation, states will have some latitude in the details of compliance.

Recognizing that, the supervisors are seeking amendments to the bill which would establish a special fund for public employees separate from the private employers. They contend that such treatment would permit local governments a lower contribution rate, one that reflects the more stable employment experience of government workers.

McAlister said that he assumed a separate fund would be possible since the precedent exists within the unemployment fund. He also pointed out that it would be possible for local governments to avoid the contributions schedules applicable to private employers if they opted for reimbursements to the funds for actual payouts.

He warned, however, that this might create problems for local governments confronted with the need to pay up after the fact, and indicated that if the decision was for the reimbursement approach there might be a requirement for the counties and cities to establish reserve funds to meet their payments.

Prudent management would dictate such reserves be established in any event if the reimbursement plan is adopted. But, McAlister pointed out, without a law making the reserve fund compulsory there is no surety that local agencies would be prudent and cited the fact that many have failed to establish such reserves for workmen's compensation and pension plans.

The supervisors have also proposed other amendments which, combined with the separate funding, would reduce costs to the counties to $25 million. Among these is the proposal to increase the eligibility requirements from the present $750 total to one of $50 a week for a 20 week period.

"Unemployment insurance," said the association president, Shannon Patterson, Tehama County Supervisor, "was never intended to be a social benefit program like welfare but a program to tide people over in brief periods when they're out of work."

The supervisors are also riled over the fact the legislature is disclaiming responsibility for any costs to local government, as a result of state legislation, on the theory that the program is not a state imposed local cost but a federally mandated one.

They have indicated that a number of public agencies are planning constitutional challenges in the courts to overturn the federal law and are asking that an automatic repeal provision be put into the McAlister bill to be effective if the courts strike down the federal law.

McAlister has promised the Assembly Committee on Finance, Insurance and Commerce, which he chairs, will endeavor to be as reasonable as possible in promulgating the legislation to meet the federal requirements.

Letter lays it on the line

you told 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has an incurable illness. I could write a book about the attitudes of people. May I make a few suggestions to those who have said, "I've been wanting to come and see him, but I didn't know what to say."

By all means come to see him. Now. Today. He won't appreciate your presence at his funeral — and neither will I, if you don't come see him when he can enjoy your company.

And here are some things you can say:

"I've been praying for you."

"I've been thinking about you and if there is anything I can do, call me anytime."

"I'm going to bring you lunch or supper tomorrow."

"I'm going to drive your car pool this month."

"I'll take your children to a movie this afternoon."

"I'm bringing you a book I think will help."

"I'll take you to the doctor this week."

"I'll come keep you company so your wife can go get her hair done."

Dear Coping: Thank you for a letter that lays it on the line. Some people need only to be told — and sister,

If they still can't find the skipper, they will enlist the cooperation of Social Security, the Internal Revenue Service, the Defense Department and the Civil Service Commission.

Once he is found, the Illinois Department of Public Aid will take legal action against him or you can get your own lawyer.

Dr. Miller

Parakeet pants like a dog

DEAR DR. MILLER: I accidentally got the electric heater too close to Birdie, my parakeet, and I almost baked him. When I found him, he was standing up on his perch with his wings spread out, and it looked like he was panting. I got him cooled down. He's okay now, but I'm curious — was he really panting like a dog? — G.N.

DEAR G.N.: Indeed, parakeets pant. They've developed that ability by the time they're nine days old. As you've noted, parakeets pant for the same reason as dogs do, to help prevent hyperthermia (overheating).

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cat, Fluffy, is 16 years old, spayed, fat, has a good appetite, cleans herself, her fur is shining and her eyes are bright. Over a year ago, her legs started to give way. Walks like an arthritic person — I suspect she has arthritis. She now waddles about, standing only for a few minutes, then either sits or lays down. An alley cat she is, as always, will hiss, growl, bite and claw out if unduly annoyed, but is a very good cat by nature. She eats a good variety of balanced foods, drinks well and likes homemade soups. She's rarely ever ill, has all her teeth, and doesn't seem to be in actual pain. So, Dr. Miller, you have her history. Can you tell me what's ailing her, and how long she may have left? — P.R.

DEAR P.R.: Obesity is a negative where longevity is concerned — she's done well to reach sweet 16. The symptoms you describe regarding her locomotion, or lack of it, could be related to an arthritic type of condition, obviously aggravated by excess-weight bearing. Yet there is good news, the fact that she remains mentally alert and retains her normal habit pattern, and that she still has her teeth are both pluses. How long has she from here? Impossible to say, but her own veterinarian has the best chance (after a complete physical) of coming up with a reasonable estimate. He can also suggest the best methods to lighten her load and (further) lengthen her life.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Snake Eyes is three years old. He's never had an affair. He's never had a chance to. We keep him on a leash. Should we arrange one for him? This dog never acts frustrated, but I wondered if an affair now might keep him from getting frustrated later on. — J.N.

DEAR J.N.: Why light his fire when you don't want him to get warm? Snake Eyes has a much better chance of keeping his cool now and in the future if he doesn't know what he's missing.

Cards are a credit to us all

Took the family out to dinner the other night, luverly roast prime rib of beef, or prime rib of roast beef, at Lord Charley's (Advt.) and didn't spend a cent. Or at least I didn't SEE a cent. The tab for four of us, including doggy bag, came to about $45, and since my wallet was in its customary emaciated condition — ready for Extreme Unction — I laid on my BankAmeridard and rose to my feet a free man. A slightly overstuffed free man. (Wallet comes from the Middle English wallet, prob. altered from wate, a hurdle, basket, hence bag, cf. Wattle. This note free to "Rattle 'Straws" readers.)

As I burped my way homeward, I fell to ruminating about the credit card and its place in our society. If it weren't for juke boxes, coffee machines and parking meters, a person could go through his entire life without ever touching a coin or a dollar bill. When I was a young man I spent a summer working in a mine in Colorado, and at the end of each week we filed past the paymaster's window and were handed a small envelope that contained our pay ($22.80) in bills and coins. Here was tangible evidence of our long and exhausting week's work deep in the er, bowels of the earth, and it gave meaning and importance to the labor. The bills and coins were, of course, only symbols of someone's indebtedness to us, but it was real; it was instantly negotiable into new jeans, rent of the trailer, a night on the town. (Money went a lot further in those days.)

Today our week's labor earns us a check, a piece of paper. We deposit it in the bank. We write more pieces of paper for rent, groceries, utilities, insurance, taxes. Money — or the promise of it — goes flowing back and forth and I never see a penny. But it all seems to work. My lights are on, my larder full, my insurance paid. But I have lost touch with the flutter of greenbacks, the jingle of coins.

Then came credit cards, and we were removed one step further from fiscal reality. I engorge a roast beef dinner and hand the waiter a little card that tells him a credit agency will pay him the cost turned in a piece of paper which the newspaper has given me for my 40 hours at the typewriter. Creepy's wot it is! Do we NEED money anymore?

Money (from the Latin moneta, a mint) is anything people agree to.

Salt, nails, cattle and wives have been negotiable currency in various countries. Giraffe tails are still used in some African countries, and whale teeth and shells are coin of the realm in the Fiji Islands. (Can you see walking into Lord Charley's with a handful of whale's teeth? In Africa, how many Russian missiles can they buy with giraffes' tails?)

Credit cards will soon supplant all money over a dollar. We'll still need coins for newspaper racks, pinball machines, and pay telephones — which, of course, will accept a credit card number. You can pay for the new baby with your Master Charge, clothe and feed him on BankAmeridard, put him through school on American Express. ("Don't leave home without it!") and set him up in business on Carte Blanche. He will dine on Diner's Club, keep his car with a variety of oil company credit cards, and probably pay for your funeral with VISTA. The cliche will change to "Credit cards are the root of all evil."

Dr. Lamb

Limit intake of dairy fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 70 and I am 68 years old. Your advice is to use skim milk, a quart a day. Each of us uses about three cups, some of it buttermilk, most two per cent buttermilk, partially skimmed milk.

My husband doesn't like completely skimmed milk. Do you think we get too much fat from the low fat milk? Is the skim milk powder all right?

Older friends tell us they buy garlic pills and take one very day. They say they keep the arteries clean. Before we start this I would like to hear your opinion.

DEAR READER — In the interests of avoiding an excess intake of fat and particularly saturated fat it is wise to limit the amount of dairy fat in your diet. That is the only good reason to use skim milk as opposed to whole milk. The low-fat, two per cent fat milk is half way in between the two products. About a third of its calories are from fat as opposed to whole milk.

If you limit the fats in the rest of your diet that will not be too much of a burden on your fat intake budget. Buttermilk is a good choice for part of your milk intake. The non-fat dry milk powder is fine and is particularly useful in cooking.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a table of the values for various milk products and information on milk. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Garlic won't help you unless it cuts down on your socializing and the inevitable eating accompanying any social gathering of our society. It is one of those useless health food fads that do nothing for you except lighten your pocketbook.

You'll need to stay on a good balanced diet that is moderately restricted in fats, particularly saturated fats and cholesterol. Sensible living, not fads, is the real route to health and longevity.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised to read in your column that some very young girls between the ages of 2 and 8 sometimes start menstruating and some have even become pregnant. Surely that is a misprint! Any comment?

DEAR READER — To err is human and misprints do occur along the production chain from me to your newspaper — but this is not one of them! The statement is correct.

Dr. Robert Kistner, well known gynecologist from Harvard, discusses this in his text, Gynecology, Principles and Practice, 2nd Edition 1971 page 183. Usually when this occurs in very young girls there is some underlying disorder but it has happened in apparently normal girls. It is rare, however. The usual age to start menstruation is between 10 and 16 years of age.

What people say

"What can you say about a season where the high point is setting a rushing record against Detroit on Thanksgiving — while we lost the game by two touchdowns?"

— O.J. Simpson, winner of the AFC rushing title as running back for the lowly Buffalo Bills.

Jim: "In other words, you should plan your play at trick one. If you do plan it properly you can usually play rapidly from then on and make a lot of close hands."

Oswald: "South wasted no time at all in winning the heart lead with dummy's queen and leading a club to his ten. West took the queen and was mean enough to abandon hearts and lead the queen of diamonds."

Jim: "Now, South was ready to think, but all thinking from this point on was going to be a waste of time. He did duck the diamond in both hands, but West continued that suit."</

BEDFORD, Ky. (AP) — Morning Star, Scoobie Doo and Raggedy Ann don't have phones but they spend a lot of time talking with each other on their Citizens Band radios. Their conversations aren't restricted to idle gossip.

The three Trimble County women have used their CBs to rally help for neighbors in trouble. For instance, they recently found alternate shelter for a family that had lost its home in a fire.

So it was natural that the three would try to find a way to help Dona Barnett, an elderly blind woman without a phone or other means of keeping in touch with the community.

Why not, the buddies decided, raise money to buy Mrs. Barnett a CB radio of her own?

The call went out over the airwaves, and soon the money rolled in from fellow radio buffs. Before they knew it, the CB buddies had enough money to buy two radios.

That second CB was earmarked for E.L. Kemp, a retired Trimble County school bus driver who, like Mrs. Barnett, is blind and doesn't have a phone.

And still the contributions came in.

The women finally asked their friends on the airwaves to stop sending money — they had raised enough for a third radio. It wasn't decided who will get that set.

In the meantime, the CBers got together to install the radios for Mrs. Burnett and Kemp.

The two elderly persons now have an effective way to ask for help when they need it, but Morning Star, Scoobie Doo and Raggedy Ann also got a bonus. They have two more people to talk with on their CBs.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Big Moose simply decided to leave all the static and join the Great Broadcaster, the minister said.

Almost every car at the funeral of Mounce Brady Jackson, 60, had a Citizens Band radio antenna, and the services reflected the hobby of Big Moose, his CB handle.

Wood said Big Moose was baptized several years ago. "He made a decision that he was going to be on the side of the Great Broadcaster," said the pastor of the Lemon Heights Baptist Church.

The Dodgers' Bill Russell sends San Francisco's John LeMaster flying Sunday in the Dodger-Giant contest at Dodger Stadium. Le-

Master couldn't hang on to ball on play, allowing Russell to be safe at second on a steal attempt. Giants won contest, 8-4.

Dodgers' bullpen can't contain Giants

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers' bullpen corps wasn't impressive Sunday afternoon but new manager Tommy Lasorda wasn't concerned.

As usual, Lasorda was his optimistic self after seeing his Dodgers lose for the first time this season in an 8-4 defeat to the San Francisco Giants.

"I wanted them to get some work," Lasorda said about his use of four pitchers from the bullpen. "This was a good opportunity to use everyone. They need the work."

Lasorda took a look at his entire bullpen except for Charlie Hough, who has been brilliant this spring.

The combination of Al Downing, Stan Wall, Mike Garman and Elias Sosa ended up allowing six hits and five runs in five innings of work.

It all added up to Ed Halicki's fourth consecutive victory over Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium despite allowing 11 hits before 25,335 Easter Sunday fans.

"We really hit the (bleep) out of the ball," the optimistic Lasorda said. "If our relief pitchers could have contained the Giants, we would have won since we scored enough runs to win."

The Giants enjoyed a 3-1 lead when Dodger starter Burt Hooton was up against a pinch-hitter in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Progress Bulletin Sports

Pomona, California ■ Monday, April 11, 1977

"I am impressed by the way we battled back today," Lasorda exclaimed. "I am really proud of our guys."

The Dodgers finally did knock out Halicki in the ninth inning after Bill Russell and Reggie Smith opened the frame with back-to-back singles.

But new Giants' manager Joe Altobelli called on Randy Moffitt from the bullpen.

Billie Jean King's younger brother quickly got behind 3-0 on Ron Cey to give the Dodger faithful some hope but recovered to strike Cey out and picked up the save by fanning Steve Garvey and getting Rick Monday on a grounder.

"I think this was a 'must' game for us," Altobelli said. "We lost the last five or six games of the exhibition season and we didn't want to leave here winless." The Dodgers ended up winning two of the three-game series with the Atlanta Braves coming in tonight to open the three-game 'Jacket Series'.

At least the Dodgers finally got to Halicki.

The tall righthander pitched three shutouts at Dodger Stadium last year.

"I like beating the Dodgers. I feel like the king of the hill," Halicki said. "I was getting tired in the seventh inning. My slider wasn't sharp. It was getting flat and I wasn't striking anybody out."

Los Angeles scored an unearned run in the third when Smith doubled Russell home after Russell was safe on an error.

The Dodgers added two runs in the seventh on Russell's single, Smith's second double, Cey's ground out and Garvey's double.

Dusty Baker belted a Halicki pitch into the leftfield pavilion to lead off the eighth inning for the Dodgers' first home run of the season.

San Francisco got to Hooton in the first inning when Rob Andrews singled, advanced to third on Darrell Evans' hit and came home on Davey Lopes' throwing error.

Shortstop John LeMaster's base-doubled single in the fourth gave the Giants a permanent lead.

After that, it was all downhill for the bullpen.

Downing gave up a run in the fifth on Evans' single after Halicki got his second hit of the afternoon and Andrews drew a walk.

Wall got tagged in the seventh on Evans' homer after Bill Madlock doubled. Garman gave up two walks and a single to Andrews in the eighth. Sosa allowed a solo homer to Larry Herndon in the ninth.

DODGER DATA — Tommy John will make his 1977 debut tonight against Atlanta's Frank LaCorte. Andy Messersmith is scheduled for his first Dodger Stadium appearance since Sept. 27, 1975 against Rick Rhoden on Tuesday night followed by Don Sutton vs. Phil Niekro Wednesday night.

Free Dodger jackets will be given to all youngsters 14 and under at all three games against the Braves.

Garvey's string of errorless games ended at 118 Sunday when he was charged with a miscue in the sixth inning for failing to field LeMaster's sacrifice bunt. He was 20 short of the National League record.

NCAA finals all sold out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Finals of the 1978 NCAA basketball tournament were listed Wednesday as sold out for next March at the St. Louis Arena, where the event was also held in 1973.

The sale of tickets from more than 10,000 requests bearing April 1 postmarks, officials said, will be determined by drawings to be held April 22. Those whose ticket requests will be filled will be notified by mail.

Reds change TV game time

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced that the 8 p.m. starting time of their game against the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday, April 18, has been changed to 8:35 p.m.

The Reds said the change was made to accommodate ABC-TV which selected the game to be televised nationally, although it will be blacked out in Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio.

Joe Rudi's slam sparks Angels

SEATTLE (AP) — Joe Rudi, the former Oakland star, says it's too early to tell what kind of season he's going to have this year with the California Angels.

He certainly fooled the Seattle Mariners.

The 30-year-old Rudi, one of three expensive free agents California signed in the offseason in hopes of winning a West Division pennant this year, drove in five runs with a first-inning grand slam home run and a double in the sixth to power the Angels to a 12-5 victory over the American League expansion team Sunday.

"One series doesn't make a star. See me in a month," said Rudi, who certainly played like a star in California's season-opening five-game set in the Kingdome. He batted .333 with two home runs, three doubles, five runs scored and nine runs-batted-in.

The slugging left-fielder wasn't the only Angel player the Mariners made look good Sunday. Ron Jackson hit a solo homer in the second inning, designated hitter Bobby Jones homered in the fourth and Don Baylor, playing first base, added a solo shot in the fifth, which pushed California's lead to 11-0.

UCLA gets national TV

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston-UCLA football game next fall, originally scheduled for Sept. 10, has been moved to Monday night, Sept. 12 and will be carried on national television.

Meanwhile, Frank Tanana, the Angels' crafty left-hander who shut out Seattle 7-0 in the season-opener Wednesday night, quietly won his second game.

Tanana, 19-10 in 1976, allowed three hits in his six innings, including a two-out homer by Mariners designated hitter Juan Bernhardt in the fifth. He struck out five and walked two before leaving for reliever Don Kirkwood.

"I can't believe it. This game was great," said Tanana, who tossed a nine-hitter in Wednesday's opener. "I got a chance to work on my mediocre fastball and slow stuff. I bet I didn't throw more than 10 or 12 real 'let-'em-out' fastballs."

"I'm not a real four-day (pitching rotation) advocate. So when I throw only 80 or 85 pitches like I did today, I'll be super-strong Thursday (at Oakland) because I haven't taxed my arm. I wanted to come out after the fifth (inning), but they said I needed the work."

Tanana said he was glad to come out, "because when you have something like an 11- or 12-run lead your concentration is shot and then they hit you 'bang, bang, bang.'"

Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson, whose club's 5-1 victory Saturday night had evened the series at 2-2, was disappointed with his pitching.

"Over-all, it wasn't a good day for our pitchers, certainly," said Johnson. "I saw a lot of bad pitches today."

"He's tough, especially on younger guys," Johnson said of Tanana. "He can really screw up your thinking."

Seattle right-handed starter Glenn Abbott, the first of three Mariners pitchers, was rocked for four hits and five runs, all earned, in 1-1 innings and suffered the loss.

The bright spots for Seattle were supplied by Bernhardt, whose homer was the first ever by a Mariner, and Ruppert Jones' two-run blast off Kirkwood in the eighth.

"It felt good. We are going to be in the (record) book," Bernhardt said of his round-trip hit. He was three-for-four at the plate in his first appearance as a Mariner.

Lakers keep West happy

SEATTLE (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Jerry West is a happy man these days and the Lakers' 113-104 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics in a National Basketball Association game Sunday just made him all the happier.

"We're very happy with this year. We've come a long way during the course of the year and I think we surprised a few people," said West of the playoff-bound Lakers.

Los Angeles ended the season with a 53-29 record, best in the NBA.

"The players are all very happy and I'm very happy myself with this bunch of guys."

Sports briefs

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Sweden's Bjorn Waldegaard won his mud-caked and battered British Ford Escort RS1800 car into Nairobi Monday evening to become the provisional winner of the 1977 Safari Auto Rally.

But Waldegaard, driving with fellow Swede Hans Thorzelius as co-driver, was beaten into Nairobi by 25 minutes by Finland's Rauno Aaltonen, driving a Japanese Datsun Violet, with Kenya's Loftus Drews as codriver.

Aaltonen, the first driver home, was provisionally awarded second spot in the rally, having picked up at least 50 more penalty points than the Swedes by the end of the 3,600-mile rally, which was run in two stages.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Texas Rangers have been blocked from placing suspended infielder Lenny Randle on the disqualified list, and officials of the American League club are steaming.

"They're treating us like the culprits," Manager Frank Lucceschi said Sunday. "Why should the ball club be penalized because of the actions of Lenny Randle?"

Randle was fined $10,000 by the Rangers and suspended 30 days after his attack on Lucceschi last month in Orlando, Fla., hospitalized the 48-year-old manager with a triple fracture of the cheekbone and back injuries.

Eddie Robinson, vice president of the Rangers, said Texas had approval of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to place Randle on the disqualified list, but the move was blocked by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

SEATTLE (AP) — The American League supervisor for umpires says "we may see the day" of the woman umpire.

"Can't you hear it?" said Dick Butler. "Kill the umpress."

But one thing you will not see "at least not during my lifetime" is instant replay cameras used to back up umpires, said Butler.

"Nine times out of 10 — make that 99 per cent — the umpires are right," said Butler. "You can't have enough cameras to cover all of the possible angles."

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association have activated center Nate Thurmond and placed guard Jim Clemons on the injured reserve list.

Coach Bill Fitch made the moves Sunday, prior to the midnight deadline for setting playoff rosters. Cleveland opens a best-of-three, first-round playoff series against the Washington Bullets Wednesday night at Landover, Md.

SPRINGFIELD, Va. — Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio, became the first two-time winner on the Professional Bowlers Tour this season, defeating Don Bell of Santa Maria, Calif. 246-194 in the championship game of a $75,000 tournament.

PENINA, Portugal — Spaniard Manuel Ramos fired a five-under-par 68 and won the 23rd Portuguese Open by two strokes.

Spikers facing big week

Three San Antonio League track meets and one Hacienda League meet are scheduled for Tuesday afternoon.

Chino will visit Pomona, Garey will host Claremont and Montclair will travel to Ganesh while Sierra Vista hosts San Dimas in the only HL encounter.

The SAL meets have been moved forward two days from the usual Thursday slot because all eight SAL schools will participate in the Chino Relays Friday night.

Damien was originally scheduled to meet Upland Tuesday, but that meet was run two weeks ago because of Damien's spring break this week.

One of the top races of the SAL dual meet season should take place in the Chino-Pomona meet. The league's top four quarter-milers will run head to head in Pomona's Anthony Miley and Lawrence Isom and Chino's Steve Gomez and Doug Williams.

The San Dimas-Sierra Vista meet is a makeup contest that was originally rained out. The Saints will be trying to keep their perfect HL record (2-0) intact for their big home meet against Ontario (3-1) Thursday afternoon.

Aztecs take 3-0 shutout

SAN JOSE (AP) — The San Jose Earthquakes, "No Goal Patrol" nickname applied only to their offensive effort in the North American Soccer League opening game.

Los Angeles' Aztecs scored a 3-0 victory before a full house at Spartan Stadium Saturday night against the team which excelled in defense while winning a division title last season.

After a scoreless first half, the Aztecs scored on a penalty kick by Phil Beal, and Steve David scored two goals.

The Quakes' next game is at Vancouver Sunday.

NBA refs hope for fan sympathy

By Associated Press

Richie Phillips, the attorney who called the walkout of National Basketball Association officials, knows there's a rough road ahead.

After all, who likes a referee?

"We are seeking sympathy from players and fans," said Phillips, "but we know full well that won't be easy. No one likes the officials very much. You learn as a kid not to like the referees."

They didn't receive much sympathy Sunday when Phillips ordered the 24 members of the National Association of Basketball Referees not to work the eight games scheduled on the final day of the National Basketball Association's regular season.

"Some of the guys who are out on strike, as far as I'm concerned, shouldn't come back," declared Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. And Washington Coach Dick Motta said.

"The referees have to do what they feel is right, but we may find eight or nine young guys who are willing to go out and work and do a job."

And the players feelings?

"I'll never back them, we're better off without them," said Boston's Jo White after the referees voted 24-0 last week to strike the playoffs and also authorized a walkout in the waning days of the regular season. The New York Knicks' Earl Monroe added, "It would be a welcome relief without them."

Without support from the players and coaches, the referees' walkout will likely have little effect on the NBA playoffs which open Tuesday night. Phillips indicated the referees, who are seeking increased pay and fringe benefits including severance pay and an arbitration clause in case of firing, would set up picket lines outside the arenas for the playoffs.

The players, however, are not expected to honor those barriers.

"The players have a no-strike clause in their contract," said Larry Fleisher, counsel to the NBA Players Association.

"Withholding services to honor picket lines amounts to the same thing" (as a strike), I would think."

Why was the strike called on Sunday?

Phillips knew that the NBA had backup teams of referees from the semi-pro Eastern League as well as local officials on stand-by all week as insurance against games having to be canceled because of a strike. There was no picketing, no attempt to disrupt the games.

Contracts with 25 of the referees expired Sunday. That includes Earl Strom, who quit the four-year-old NABR two years ago, but does not include Richie Powers, who resigned from the union last month and who has a contract through next season.

The league contends that it has always negotiated individual contracts with officials and that these contracts provided for extra compensation for the playoffs. "But the two-

Shortages, higher prices

Drought making inroads on state wine supplies

NAPA (AP) — Some California wines will be in short supply and at higher prices in upcoming months, partly because of the state's record two-year drought.

But vintners stress that no one — not even those who favor the popular white wines, hardest hit by the drought — will have to go thirsty.

The drought is taking its toll in wine-producing regions like the scenic Napa and Sonoma valleys north of San Francisco and the sprawling San Joaquin Valley.

The shortages, when they occur, are likely to be brief, wine industry spokesmen say. They add the industry will ration or "allocate" to spread their desired Chardonnay, Chenin Blanc and Riesling varieties as widely as possible.

Wine will cost more, probably eight to 10 per cent more a bottle this year, according to several major wineries surveyed. But they say higher costs of grapes because of drought-caused lower yields is a small fraction of the increase. They say costs of corks, bottles and labor have skyrocketed.

"Your values change when you go into a multiyear drought," says Michael Mondavi of the Robert Mondavi winery in the Napa Valley.

Lack of moisture, an unusually long heat wave last summer and unseasonal rains last fall caused vineyards on the North Coast to produce 30 to 40 per cent less in 1976.

"Two years ago, we'd be very disappointed with an 80 per cent crop. Now we're saying we'll be very happy if we do have one," said Mondavi.

Louis Martini of St. Helena says, "If there's a shortage, it will be of short duration. Individual wineries on individual varieties undoubtedly have some allocations. I doubt we'll run out of white wine in the industry."

Erie Wente of Wente Brothers in Livermore, one of the state's best-known producers of white wine, said whites have been sold under allocations for years, but the impact of the drought and increased demand could cause more stringent marketing measures.

Allotment is planned by some vintners on red wines to stretch out sales of good 1974 and 1975 vintages more than a year, and the short crops of 1976 and 1977 can be sold in fewer months.

Mondavi said all high-quality white wines will be allocated. "We could sell 30 to 40 per cent more. We'll allocate. We'll have to say we're sorry, but we'll be out periodically."

The Napa Valley yield was down, but the San Joaquin Valley production was up. This year, any vineyard without access to a well or irrigation ditch — and most have it — will be in a pinch without spring rains and a mild summer.

Sixty per cent cuts in Central Valley Project water for irrigation probably will reduce the San Joaquin Valley crop, the main home of the Thompson seedless grape, which is also popular as a table grape.

The Thompson also is in demand for raisins, and competition for the grape between raisin producers and wineries already has boosted prices to $100 a ton, up $10 or $15. The raisin industry was clobbered last year by unseasonal rain last fall, so it has little or no carryover inventory.

San Martin's Ed Friedrich said his wine probably will go up eight to 10 per cent in retail prices with drought a minor factor at this point.

Jerry Gleeson, spokesman for The Christian Brothers at Mont La Salle, said, white wines are apparently won't happen after all.

Just how much more wine ultimately will cost still awaits some unknown factors, such as how the vineyards survive anticipated freezing nights and whether heat waves hit this summer.

Probably the most dramatic increase will be on the jug and pop wines that use the Thompson seedless grape grown mainly in the San Joaquin Valley.

Prices of roses and some lighter reds that don't require aging — such as the Gamay Beaujolais — also are expected to increase, but the impact on the premium California red wine, Cabernet Sauvignon, won't be felt for about three years because the wine needs to be aged before release.

A visitor to the Napa Valley, California's most famous wine region, would find it difficult to find evidence of the drought unless he knew where to look.

The first buds that will produce grapes aren't due until April.

It has rained recently, but Martini, looking out at snow on nearby mountains, said it wasn't doing much good. "It isn't soaking far enough down to help the mature vines."

Industry spokesmen say decreased yields per acre could be made up by 58,000 acres of vineyards expected to come into production this year.

Last year's dry year caused some growers to prune back buds that would have produced grapes this year, and the pruning this year will reduce next year's production.

The San Francisco Democrat's office said Wednesday the hearings will be at 10 a.m. April 13 in the Eureka Municipal Auditorium and at 10 a.m. April 14 in the Federal Building here.

If adequate spring rains don't arrive, and there is a heat wave this summer, some growers may have prune all the way back to save their vines, Sebastiani said.

What happens if there's a third straight drought year?

"It'll be Katie bar the door," said Sebastiani. "I don't know how much of this the vines can take."

"Survival is the name of the game now," said Michael Robbins of Spring Mountain Winery in St. Helena. He said his prices will go up $1 a bottle retail.

Dry Creek Vineyards' Dave Stare has 20 acres covered by sprinklers to guard against frost damage. He figured that four hours of frost protection used 250,000 gallons of water for 20 acres.

The Dry Creek Vineyards' proprietor added, "The creek is living up to its name three months earlier than usual this year."

The Thompson also is in demand for raisins, and competition for the grape between raisin producers and wineries already has boosted prices to $100 a ton, up $10 or $15. The raisin industry was clobbered last year by unseasonal rain last fall, so it has little or no carryover inventory.

He sees red over yellow

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa House is buzzing over the bumblebee yellow uniforms of its pages.

Contending that the state got stung when it purchased the bright yellow uniforms, Rep. Scott Newhard, D-Anamosa, proposed a resolution to excuse the pages from wearing them.

They're of poor quality material, ill-fitting and look terrible, Newhard said.

"I came down here this morning and saw these bumblebees running around again, and it just sort of made me sick," he said.

The pages hadn't been wearing their uniforms for several weeks, but the House Administration Committee on Friday ordered them to resume doing so.

Rep. James Wells, D-Cedar Rapids, chairman of the House Administration committee, admitted the state got a poor deal on the uniforms. But he said the present set of pages can put up with the uniforms for the two weeks they have left to go on their legislative stint.
